

It is my opinion that once a broadcast signal enters my home, it is my property with which I can do as I please. If I feel I want to record the broadcast, I should be allowed to do so. Big business in America is far too scared of competition. I say let the free-market system sort this out and fein from passing new laws. If the public wants to record high-def broadcasts, so be it. Perhaps prices on this service will go up and perhaps some will pay for it. The free market system is powerful and can handle situations such as this.
